Friends of the San Antonio Public Library

Celebrating 21 Years of History and Hundreds of Volunteer Workers

May 2012
Landmarks Along the Way

March 23, 1994 – Friends of the San Antonio Public Library was officially organized, receiving a charter from the City Council, signed by 13 founding members. Its purpose, then and now, is to “promote public use of the San Antonio Public Library System and appreciation of its value as a cultural and educational asset to the community, and to encourage the extension and improvement of the services.”

During its first 25 years, the Friends raised money for library programs primarily through donations, assisted library staff with various tasks, supported library bond issues and honored prominent local writers and artists with its annual Arts & Letters Awards.

May 1989 – David Leamon, “the father of the BookCellar,” was hired as Library Director, bringing new ideas from out of state. Finding a huge number of discarded library books in storage, he suggested Friends of the Library hold a book sale and possibly open a book store to dispose of the books and raise money for the underfunded library. He and City Manager Alex Briseño persuaded City Council to authorize the Friends to sell discarded library materials. The resulting city ordinance was passed on March 22, 1990.

September 12–16, 1990 – The first sale, co-chaired by Mary McAfee and Assistant Library Director Gerry LeFevre, was held in Centro de Artes in Market Square, raising more than $20,000.

April 6, 1991 – The Market Street Book Cellar opened in the Hertzberg Circus Museum basement at 210 West Market Street, open Tuesday through Saturday and operated by Friends of the Library. Early volunteers included Norm Sonnenschein, Tom Nemeth, Jeanne Papa, Lucille Teeter, Yolanda Herrera, Rowena Rodgers and Jim Wogstad, who all remain active workers. Others at the Hertzberg location who have retired from the BookCellar in recent years included Pat Brown, Robbi Ruppert, Ed Van Peit, Bettie Ward and Ruth Yows.

October 1991–March 1996 – The Friends continued to hold big Annual Book Sales, twice in the old Sears parking garage (now Central Library garage), three times in the Villita Assembly Hall basement, and finally in the auditorium of Central Library, which had opened May 20, 1995. Thousands of books were transported from the Hertzberg to sale locations by truck or hand-pulled dollies. Mary McAfee co-chaired most of these sales.

November 1996 – The Market Street Book Cellar was forced to close because of renovations to open the Hertzberg to the Riverwalk and make the building accessible to the disabled.

May 1997 and February 1998 – Annual Book Sales were held in the Central Library auditorium. Lucille Teeter, then Book Cellar manager, kept volunteers informed and involved.

October 31, 1998 – The Book Cellar reopened in its new location in the Central Library basement. Hours were 11 a.m.-3 p.m., seven days a week.

January 1999 – The Book Cellar began awarding volunteers with aprons decorated with patches each representing 50 hours worked. Since then, 1,350 patches have been earned, representing almost 68,000 volunteer hours recorded.

May 17–19, 2002 – Canopies designed by Jim Wogstad enabled the big Annual Sale to expand to the patio.

June 9, 2005 – The store extended its hours to Thursday evenings.

October 2009 – Store’s name was officially changed to The BookCellar (one word).

2010 – The Library Board of Trustees presented a Library Champions Award to BookCellar volunteers as a group.

January 2011 – Under the leadership of Friends President Nancy Gandara, a formal Memorandum of Understanding between the Friends and the Library System was signed, spelling out for the first time their respective responsibilities in the BookCellar’s use of library space.

2002–2011 – The store added shelves, tables, new equipment and better lighting and expanded work space for improved effectiveness in selling books and media. Average annual sales increased by 33%.

21 Years of History

An estimated 450 individuals have worked at the BookCellar since 1991, usually giving at least four hours a week of their time. At any one time, an active core of 20 to 40 people has kept the store going. Many have retired from volunteering for health reasons, moved away or are no longer living. On this anniversary, we remember all of them with gratitude.

Together, their work in operating the BookCellar and big Annual Sales has generated more than $1 million, enabling Friends of the Library to give the Library System more than $1 million during those 21 years. The Library System has used this money for Summer Reading programs, children’s events that travel to all branches, adult programs, and library staff development.
